Alberta's Debt Adjustment Act will be the subject of argument in the Supreme Court of Canada on June 24th and thereafter, when appeal against the adverse decision of Mr. Justice O'Connor is heard. It has been announced that the province will take the case to the Privy Council if considered necessary.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION MEET IN BLAIRMORE

A ministerial association meeting was held on Monday morning at Central United church, Blaimore, when the following attended: Captain Roger and Lieutenant Banman, of the Macleod Salvation Army; Rev. Mr. Axon, Macleod, Rev. Mr. Barlow, Brockton, and Rev. J. R. Hague, Coleman, representing the Anglican church. The United church ministers in attendance were: Rev. R. E. Pow, Pincher Creek; Rev. J. E. Kirk, Coleman; Rev. W. H. Irwin, Bellevue; Rev. V. M. Gilbert, Macleod, and Rev. E. B. Arrol, Blaimore.

An invitation had been extended to the ministers' wives, and the following were present: Mrs. Irwin, Mrs. Hague, Mrs. Kirk, Mrs. Gilbert, Mrs. E. B. Arrol, Mrs. Margaret Pow accompanied her father.

Captain Roger led in the devotions, while Lieutenant Banman rendered a solo. The address was given by Rev. W. H. Irwin.

The ministers' wives of The Pass served lunch in the church gymnasium, and afternoon tea at the Manse. A happy time of sight-seeing and fellowship was enjoyed by all.

ST. ANNE'S PARISH CARNAVAL

Large 4-color posters have just come off The Enterprise presses, announcing the big carnival to be staged at the Blaimore arena on the nights of Saturday and Sunday, June 21st and 22nd, under auspices of St. Anne's parish.

From 7 to 12 each evening there will be fun for all, including cat alley, bingo, mouse-mouse, darts, and the grandest of all ideas: "Knock the L out of Hitler." Dolls, blankets and other merchandise will be disposed of, and refreshments will be served right there.

Also, there will be two grand drawings, on Saturday night for a $145 chesterfield suite, and on Monday a 5-piece bedroom suite valued at $185. A first-class orchestra will furnish music for a jittery dance each night.

At a general meeting of members of the Blaimore Branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., on Monday night, thirty applicants were admitted to membership. A smoker followed the meeting.

VICTORY LOAN 1941 AWAY TO GRAND START

The local district campaign in the interest of Canada's 1941 Victory Loan is meeting with wonderful response, and it appears that from all sections of the division the allotments will be oversubscribed. Blaimore, in particular, has done marvelously, and went over the top in the opening day of the campaign. Other towns are doing wonderfully well, and it is hoped that by the end of next week this division will announce doubling its quota.

A Torch ceremony took place in Blaimore on Monday evening, when about one thousand school children and adults paraded from the school grounds to the city park, where a programme was carried out as follows: Introductory remarks by His Worship Mayor E. Williams, chairman; Breaking Out the Torch Flag by Const. G. Moffatt; "O Canada" by the audience; bidding-prayer by Rev. E. B. Arrol, B.A.; community singing under Conductor W. G. Moffatt; "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "There'll Always be an England"; "Torch Day" address by Mr. S. G. Banman, coupled with the "Oath of Allegiance" repeated by all present, standing with right hand over heart; and the National Anthem. The "Torch Day" scroll was formally signed by Mayor Ed. Donkin, of Frank, and Mayor E. Williams.

Taking place in the parade were the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, the 16th Alberta Light Horse regiment under Capt. E. C. Cosstick, members of Blaimore Branch of the B.E.S.L., members of Crows' Nest Chapter of the I.O.D.E., members of Town Council and School Board, and school children and teachers.

VICTORY LOAN 1941

Any subscriber who has purchased a Victory Bond, and has paid in full for same, may obtain the Bond any time at the Bank.

Any person who has subscribed for a Victory Bond, either in full or by installments, may obtain a very attractive acknowledgment card from the local Headquarters Office. The cards are issued by the Dominion government, and we would like to see a VICTORY BOND CARD in every house and store window in The Pass.

Prizes for The Pass greatest chronic loafers were awarded last week end. Some little dissatisfaction was recorded by some of the contestants, but it will be up to them to prove that the judges did not arrive at the proper conclusion in awarding prizes. Jehoshaphat Sabrovinski (with several aliases) was awarded first prize. He succeeded in driving no less than forty-two customers away from local retail stores, restaurants, barber shops and street corners in six days. The prize was a most luxurious inscribed strip from a 1914 fisherman's leather boot. Prize number two went to Mr. Havro Principle, a loathpick, honorably earned in his capacity at driving good people away from business establishments. Owing to the prize being slightly smaller than the recipient, it was not engraved. The sponsors of the movement figure their efforts against the loafer course have been successful, and promise to carry on in the great work. In future, however, the real names of the prize winners, in addition to their aliases and non-de-plumes, will be published. Even Hitler would consider a chronic loafer a curse to humanity.

The death of George Roger LeRoy occurred at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Halliwell, in Coleman, on Sunday morning. The remains were shipped to Penticton, B.C., for burial. George was a son of Mr. H. A. LeRoy, for some years manager of the Trites-Wood Co. store at Michel. Mrs. LeRoy (nee Madge Halliwell) and her mother accompanied the remains.

BLAIRMORE-FRANK UNIT MAKES EXCELLENT SHOWING

As we go to press we learn that all units in the Pincher Creek-Crows' Nest Division of the Victory Loan 1941 campaign have exceeded their quotas. An idea can best be gathered from the following table:

Unit	Quota	Sub's	%
Blaimore-Frank	$41,000	$37,050	214
Bellevue-Hillcrest	28,000	34,250	122
Coleman	$53,000	59,900	113
Pincher Creek	31,000	55,150	178
Totals	153,000	246,350	161

Pincher Creek-Crows' Nest Division was first to go "over the top," and the first with all units in the division to go over.

Blaimore-Frank is entitled to one honor pennant for making quota, and one extra pennant for each 25 per cent over quota—six pennants in all.

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

Norman McMillan left on Friday for Toronto, where he is enlisted with the R.C.A.F.

Mrs. Arnold (nee Katie Banamer), of Regina, is paying a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gunn and family. Henry Franz will be leaving shortly for an extended visit with relatives at Cheney, Washington.

Mrs. W. E. Tustian was a recent patient in hospital at Pincher Creek. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Main and three daughters, of Winnipeg, paid a visit to friends here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Cleland, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cleland and George Cleland attended the funeral of Mrs. J. J. Ombler (nee Alice Cleland) at Calgary on Tuesday of last week.

Three inches of rain fell here during the eleven days wet spell, beginning May 25th and clearing up on June 4th. Farmers are quite hopeful of a full harvest of grains and hay crops, and the million-dollar rain. Mrs. Phippe and Mrs. Millward, of Oshawa and Hamilton, Ontario, returned to their homes after spending several months with their sister, Mrs. A. J. Snyder, and family.

Among local citizens attending the Victory Loan celebration at Macleod on Monday were Mrs. Doris Sandeman, Mrs. Mollie Milvain, Mr. Harry Gunn, Mr. and Mrs. George Porter, Miss Phyllis Porter and Miss Edith Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin and family, of Mossleigh; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Martin and four children, and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Murphy were on a camping holiday up Corbin valley, B.C., over the week end. There were fifteen in the party, and reported having had an enjoyable time.

Large posters turned out by The Enterprise yesterday announce a big marketing, field and sports event to be staged at Lundbreck on Wednesday, June 12th, by the Lundbreck, Maycroft and Tenayson branches of the Canadian Red Cross Society. There will be, for private sale or auction, live stock, home cooking and candy, plain and fancy sewing and a miscellaneous collection of useful articles. The affair starts promptly at 2 p.m. Field attractions will include foot races for children, softball and a horseshoe tournament. Refreshments will be served on the ball ground, and tea, coffee, sandwiches, cake, etc., at tables in the community hall, where also you may have your fortunes and misfortunes revealed to you more clearly than ever before through the tea cup. A dance in the hall in the evening will form the grand climax.

The Blaimore branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., during the past week or so has received cards and letters from the following Blaimore boys now on active service overseas: Joseph Mottl, John Pratt, Leslie Gilmour, Albert Morris, Charles Harmer, William Knight, Harry Lord, James Patterson (of William) and J. A. McDonald.

FORM MERCANTILE UNION

At a meeting held in Blaimore on Friday evening last it was decided to organize a branch of the mercantile union as sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress.

The meeting was presided over by T. McCloy, of Coleman, organizer and official of the U. M. W. of A.

The following officers were elected: Tony Poch, of Frank, president; Alex. McKay, of Blaimore, vice-president; Mrs. A. Lopichuk, of Coleman, secretary; A. Coupland, Bellevue, Henry Tiberghien, Coleman, and John Shaf-fer, Blaimore, executive.

All branches of unorganized labor are to be united, it is planned. Already, Mr. McCloy has succeeded in organizing mill workers, prop cutters, carpenters, builders and hotel and restaurant employees.

HILLCREST FISH AND GAME ASSOCIATION REORGANIZES

Although no action so far has been taken in Blaimore or other towns on this side of the mountains, Hillcrest supporters of the Fish and Game Association have got busy during the past week and organized for the 1941 season, which they hope will be a successful one.

At a well attended meeting the following officers were elected: D. J. Jones, president; A. W. Hollingshead, secretary, both re-elected. Executive members are: W. Fisher, John Podgorski, John Semanick, R. Silcock and E. Hurtak.

The executive is at present negotiating with the fisheries department to have rearing ponds stocked with rainbow fry, and that the fingerlings raised be released in our main streams. Stripping of fish for eggs at Lee Lake in 1940 was not considered a success. It was suggested that this lake should be cleaned of pest fish, and restocked with fingerlings, to be used for breeding purposes.

Prizes for last season were distributed as follows: D. J. Jones, speckled trout, five pounds nine ounces; R. Letcher, bull trout, five pounds three ounces; E. D'Erolg, grayling, two pounds five ounces.

Following the meeting, a successful smoker-concert was held.

Representatives of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan and of some of the mid-Western states of the American union who met recently in Regina to urge the construction of an inland highway on the eastern side of the Rockies to provide a new means of communication between the United States and Alaska appear to have some very potent arguments in support of their contention.

Briefly, the organization that was set up decided to make representations to Washington and Ottawa that the road should be built via the route rather than along the Pacific Coast, as recommended by the Alaska International Highway Commission. The latter had just then requested Secretary of State Cordell Hull for an appropriation of $25,000,000 for the construction of the highway along the Pacific Coast, a distance of 1,800 miles, "as a precaution against invasion by Russia from Siberia."

Just how serious a menace Russia or Japan may be to Alaska is difficult to say, but invasion of this far flung territory of the U.S.A. by either power, or both combined is by no means beyond the bounds of possibility. It is not surprising that the Alaskans, separated from Siberia by a strip of water only 50 miles wide should be uneasy in the light of the recent understanding between Japan and Russia. It is the role of the Japanese, as Hitler's partner in the Orient, to make things as uncomfortable and difficult as possible for the United States and to hamper American aid to Britain by any device that may seem good as opportunity arises.

If a large part of the American navy were withdrawn to the Atlantic it might provide just the opening that Japan apparently seeks to keep the American Pacific fleet busy while the Russians, using Siberian bases invaded Alaska and in so doing constitute a menace not only to Alaska but to contiguous Canadian territory.

Have Strong Arguments

That is just the kind of game that Hitler would like to see played in the Northern Pacific and it would be in keeping with his tactics to induce the Japanese to represent the situation as affording a golden opportunity to the cunning Stalin—a repetition of the Finnish and Polish adventures with a chance to get something for very little effort.

Because of the geographic and strategic location of Alaska, the question is one of almost as great import to Canada as to the United States, and in view of the defensive reciprocity set up by the two countries for the safeguarding of this continent from anti-democratic foes, it is a subject in which Canada has a vital interest. If it can be shown that a highway which should be built as a defence measure should cross the continent to Alaska on the eastern side of the Rocky Mountains instead of along the Pacific coast, Canadians are warranted in taking more than an academic interest in the matter.

A highway route to Alaska from the industrial section of the United States centering on Chicago, where munitions are manufactured in volume, would follow a general northwesterly course across the prairies, via the Yukon paralleling the new international airways route, if directions, shortest distance and minimum of cost are important factors and surely, whether the route is to be used for military or commercial purposes, or both, these are considerations of maximum import.

When to these considerations are added the fact that such a route would be a protected route as compared with a comparatively vulnerable route along the Pacific coast, the western Americans and Canadians who are urging the adoption of this course would appear to have irrefutable arguments in support of their contention.

Shortest And Cheapest

There is no gainsaying the fact that a highway across the prairies would be less costly to construct and to maintain than one that follows the difficult terrain on the Western side of the Rockies. The fact that such a route would be less accessible to enemy damage than the western route cannot be denied. It could not be reached at all by naval action and would be less subject to aerial bombardment than a coastal highway. Indeed, it could be better protected from attack from the skies since it would be easily protected by Canadian and American aircraft with early completion of the airfields now under construction along the companion route.

Military action nowadays demands speed. Direct, easily traversable routes coupled with the shortest possible distance means speed of movement. When these things are combined with economy of cost, there seems to be little left unsaid in support of the request that earnest consideration be given by the authorities of the two countries for construction of the direct highway.

This Is New Idea

What happened at a recent meeting of the Aymer, Out, Rotary Club ought to be helpful to treasurers of other service organizations. A police constable attended the gathering as a guest and a fine was imposed on every member unable to produce his national registration card. As might be expected, the club treasury benefited quite materially.

What Anzacs Think Of Italian Troops And Their Fighting
Australian troops seem to take an "unhappy pleasure" out of fighting and after their experience in the Balkans do not fear the military forces of Germany, Robert Menzies, Australian prime minister, said recently. As for the Italians, Mr. Menzies said he could not repeat in mixed company exactly what the Anzacs think of them and their fighting qualities.

Depend On Hearing

Psychologists Test Ability Of Blind To Avoid Obstacles

Cornell psychologists stated that they had found the solution of what constitutes the so-called "sixth sense" in the blind which enables them to avoid obstacles. The blind avoid obstacles through the sense of hearing, according to the psychologists.

It is believed that the discovery will not only bring hope and confidence to the newly blind, but also will provide techniques for those who have been blind for many years and enable them to obtain a freedom of movement now denied them. The Cornell findings are said by the scientists to have implications also for persons moving about during blackouts, which already have resulted in many accidents in England. As a result of the new findings, those blinded by accidents, or by war, need not resign themselves to utter dependence upon their sighted neighbors, the psychologists say.

In a series of carefully controlled experiments consisting of more than 1,500 trials, the three psychologists used four subjects, two totally blind and two with normal vision. The latter believed beforehand that they would be incapable of perceiving the presence of objects without vision. But, from the very outset, these subjects, who were now completely blindfolded, were able to detect the presence of an artificial wall which was placed in their path.

In the first series the subjects were disoriented and started at varying distances from a stationary wall toward the wall, stop as soon as they "felt" its presence, and then to move as close to the wall as possible without running into it. The ratio of the distance to the distance when the subject at which the wall was perfect was as close as he thought possible, was established by the investigators as a measurement of the acuity of the sense of obstacles. The greater the ratio, the greater the acuity.

The ratios of the blind subjects were greater than those of the blindfolded, normal subjects. When the subjects walked on a carpet, without their shoes, the ratios dropped proportionately in all cases.

The blind subjects could detect the presence of the wall, on the average, when it was fifteen feet away and could walk up within three inches of it. The sighted individuals, when blindfolded, detected the presence of the obstacle when five feet away, on the average, and walked within six inches of it. In several series of 50 trials both the blind and sighted persons obtained perfect scores in avoiding the obstacle.

How The Panle-Strickon Poles Are Driven From Their Homes

Nazis are driving panle-strickon Poles from their homes in Polish territories now incorporated in the German Reich. The deportations affect all districts, all classes of people. In the districts of Gostynin and Kutno small landowners have been expelled, landless peasants driven out. Five hundred persons, Polish businessmen and merchants, were deported in Kutno in one night. Children were separated from their parents and taken into the Reich.

Throughout the most severe part of last winter, deportation from the province of Lodz and Poznan continued. From the small district of Koszary, 800 peasants were taken to the General Government in cattle trucks. Their journey to Zamosc lasted five weeks during which they received no cooked food and remained endless periods at wayside stations where 40 children died.

Out of one single transport of 1,200 Poles from the west to Poznan, 220 children died, besides several adults. Only 17 children survived the journey.

New Idea In Banking

Two Memphis banks came up with a new wrinkle—curb service banking for busy motorists. They announced plans for construction of "outdoor windows" to which motorists could drive up, hand their deposits over to a teller and drive away without getting out of their automobiles.

British Girls Man Guns

Are To Go Into Action Under Active Service Conditions

A. T. S. girls are to go into action as A.A. gunners at gun posts throughout Great Britain. They will take their place under active service conditions in the day and night Battle of Britain.

Picked girls will direct the firing and they will share with men gunners the hardships of gun post life and the dangers of bombing and machine gunning.

Sir Frederick Pile, chief of the A.A. Command, has taken this decision after consultation with the War Office and A. T. S. chiefs.

The girls will be trained as A.A. specialists in night-finding and predictor work. Quick thinking, a cool head, and an intimate knowledge of Britain's new anti-aircraft devices are required.

Actual shell-loading and heavy manual work will continue to be carried out by men, but women will direct them.

These women brain-behind-the-guns will receive danger-money and higher rates of pay than rank-and-file A. T. S.

They will have the privilege of wearing white lanyards over their right shoulders and Royal Artillery badges on their breast to distinguish them as A.A. girls.

Always Wanted World Power

New Book Tells Desire Of German Leaders For Generations

Critics of Sir Robert Vansittart, author of the broadcasts and the book detailing Germany's black record of aggression, will sit up and take notice when they see a new book on Germany for which Sir Robert is to write the introduction. The book is an anthology of German political thought from Frederick the Great to the present, and it will show how a continuous desire for world domination has possessed German leaders for generations.

As Sir Robert Vansittart is Chief Diplomatic Adviser to the Government, some of his critics tried to get his book banned by pointing out that the author is a public servant. Lord Crampton, in the House of Lords recently, said that Sir Robert was entitled to his own opinions, and revealed that Lord Halifax had approved the broadcasts on which the book was based. Sir Robert himself made no public reply to his critics.

Bombing Berlin

Germans Are Sensitive To Attacks On Their Capital

It has not escaped notice that the Germans are peculiarly sensitive to attacks on their capital. They make more fuss when the Unter den Linden is hit than when the shipyards at Kiel are smashed up by bombs. In the latter case they do not talk nonsense about reprisals—the giving of buffet for buffet is in the obvious routine of war. But they become hysterical with threats and indignation when bombs fall in Berlin. It is because they fear the damage done to their morale more even than damage to their equipment? If so morale becomes very like a military objective—London Spectator.

Greater Efficiency

Modern Electric Power Plant Burns Much Less Coal

Twenty years ago a power plant burned three to five pounds of coal to generate a kilowatt of electricity. To-day, so great has been the improvement in the efficiency of both steam and electric power equipment, a modern plant consumes only a single pound of coal per kilowatt of power output. If your power plant is old, the improvement possible is worth investigating.—The Rotarian.

BRITAIN PLACES HER WAR PLANS BEFORE THE WORLD

London.—Great Britain has placed her war aims before the world for the first time, since calling for the establishment everywhere of President Roosevelt's "four freedoms" and stern military and political terms to prevent Germany from ever again aspiring to the mastery of Europe. The statement was made by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in an address at Mansion House, residence of the Lord Mayor of London. Eden presented this outline of Britain's war aims:

1. A peace based upon President Roosevelt's ideals of freedom of speech, freedom of religion, freedom from want and freedom from fear.

2. "Political and military terms" designed to place Germany in a position where she never again could challenge world peace or again become "the worst master Europe has yet known."

3. Establishment of social security abroad as well as at home, through co-ordinated efforts of Britain, the dominions, the United States and South America to stabilize currencies, feed starving people, avert fluctuations of employment, prices and markets.

4. Extension of this new "moral order"—as opposed to Adolf Hitler's "new European order" to the Far East once the Sino-Japanese war has been liquidated.

5. British support of the independence of Syria and a unified Arab world.

Eden asserted that Britain would seek achievement of these ideals "in ways which would interfere as little as possible with proper liberty in each country over its own economic fortunes."

"What has Germany to offer on her side?" asked Eden. "Absolutely nothing."

He warned, however, that Britain will impose drastic peace terms upon Germany which he characterized as "the worst master Europe has yet known."

"Five times in the last century," he said, "she has violated the peace. She must never be in a position to play that role again. Our political and military terms of peace will be designed to prevent repetition of Germany's misdeeds."

Making the first authoritative statement of Britain's war aims, Eden declared that these aims constitute a "moral order" in contrast to the "new order" offered by Adolf Hitler.

Eden declared that he counted upon the united support of the British Empire, the United States and South America in the establishment of the post-war era which Britain envisages.

Regulations Relaxed

Alex Will Allow Vichy To Have An Air Force

Vichy, France.—The Petain government said Germany and Italy have relaxed armistice regulations to allow Vichy to build up a continental air force for "defence of its empire."

The disclosure was made in connection with a visit by Marshal Petain to groups of French bomber, reconnaissance and pursuit planes at the Aulnay base near Clermont-Ferrand in unoccupied territory.

Hanson As House Leader

Ottawa.—Hon. R. H. Hanson, acting house leader of the Conservative group in the House of Commons, has been asked to continue in that capacity for the next session of parliament, it was announced after a Conservative caucus. The request for Mr. Hanson to continue as house leader was unanimous, the caucus spokesman told the press.

Division Surrenders

Nairobi, Kenya Colony.—An entire Italian division, with its commanding general, has surrendered to British forces in the lakes area of Ethiopia. "General Cafarati, commanding one Italian division, has surrendered with the mechanized forces operating in the lakes area," the British command announced.

Employ Sews

Fithiviers, Occupied France.—About 4,000 foreign Jews interned near here and Orleans will be employed on public work projects under a new government program. The Jews, taken into custody May 14, were installed in French army barracks. French public guards and French officers supervise the camp.

U.S. Wheat Quota

Canada Holds A Favored Position In New Ruling

Washington.—A presidential proclamation imposed quotas on imports of wheat and wheat flour from 30 countries.

The total quota for wheat imports, for consumption in any period of 12 months, will be 800,000 bushels, of which Canada may send in 785,000. The total for wheat flour is 4,000,000 pounds, with Canada allotted 3,815,000 pounds.

Most of the major countries are allotted quotas either for wheat or flour, including Germany, Italy, Japan and France. There are quotas also for some of the countries overrun by Germany, including Belgium, Rumania, Norway, Yugoslavia, Poland, Greece and Hungary.

It was pointed out in agricultural circles that since domestic prices through crop loans will be so far above world prices, conceivably foreign wheat could be shipped here duty paid and still undersell American wheat, were not restrictions applied.

Ship Losses Heavy

Britain Taking Toll Of Axis Boats Trying To Run Blockade

London.—Five hundred and sixty-one Axis ships totalling 2,573,000 tons have been sunk, captured or scuttled since the war began up to the middle of May, it was learned officially.

The Germans lost 245 ships totalling 1,773,000 tons, of which 61 were captured or seized and 285 sunk or scuttled.

The Italians lost 215 ships totalling 1,100,000 tons of which 39 were captured or seized and 176 sunk or scuttled.

An additional 38 ships of other countries totalling 67,000 tons which had been sailing on behalf of Germany "have been disposed of by one means or another," it was stated.

The sinkings are continuing, officials said, indicating that the Axis ships are still trying to run the blockade.

Sending Warplanes To East

Report Says Germans Reducing Force In Northwestern Europe

London.—The Germans recently have reduced their air forces in northwestern Europe, appreciably, sending large numbers of dive bombers and fighter planes through the Balkans to Greece and the Middle East, informed British sources said.

"These informants said these movements of German planes involved a flight of about 1,200 miles, as contrasted with the 12,000-mile voyage around the Cape of Good Hope by which British planes have to be sent to the Middle East."

It was added that Iraq is one place in the Middle East where it is believed British superiority in the air.

Under German Orders

Fifty-Nine Canadian Women Reported Interned In Occupied France

Ottawa.—Ninety of 159 Canadian women reported to be interned in occupied France were made public by the department of external affairs.

The list brings to 116 the number of Canadian women who have been reported interned in that section of France.

"Apparently these women have been interned in pursuance of an order from the German general staff that Canadians in occupied France, regardless of age or sex, should be taken into custody," the department's statement said.

Decorated By The King

Two More Canadians Receive The George Medal For Bravery

London.—Lt. John M. S. Patton of Hamilton, Ont., and Capt. Douglas W. Cunningham of Calgary, awarded the George Medal for bravery last December, were decorated by the King at an investiture held recently at Buckingham Palace. Details of their action were not published, but they were said to have displayed conspicuous courage while commanding a company of Royal Canadian Engineers repairing bomb damage.

Gift From New Zealand

Auckland, N.Z.—A cigarette box of island New Zealand wood will have short for Britain, where it will be presented to Squadron Leader D. R. Bader, legless ex-leader of the all-Canadian Royal Air Force squadron. The box is a gift from amiable and legless veterans in New Zealand as a tribute to Bader's determination in overcoming his infirmity.

Merchandise Confiscated

Jap Ships Remove Seized U.S. Goods From Indo-China

Haiphong, French Indo-China.—Three Japanese freighters have sailed for an undisclosed destination with 1,500 tons of goods seized by Japanese soldiers when they broke into two local warehouses and removed $10,000,000 worth of United States-owned products.

Five other Japanese freighters were loading even greater quantities of the confiscated merchandise. Cargo includes automobiles, trucks, tires, lubricating oil, iron bars, copper, nickel and lead bars.

Local French authorities said they were helpless to prevent the confiscation except for a protest, which they said the Japanese ignored.

AIR RAID BY THE R.A.F. CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE

London.—A sergeant pilot who led a Royal Air Force raid on the German-occupied airport at Lannion, Normandy, was quoted by the air ministry news service as calling the venture one of the best of the many operational flights he has made.

The air ministry said seven German aircraft were known to have been destroyed on the ground, while others were damaged, a hangar demolished and another damaged.

The air ministry announced, a coastal command plane scored direct bomb hits on an enemy supply ship of about 5,000 tons in a convoy off Brest. "The ship was left listing heavily," a brief communique said.

In other actions the R.A.F. bombed the German industrial city of Cologne and the Nazi-occupied French coast. Shore watchers saw flashes rising on the far side of the channel almost continuously from shortly after midnight until almost dawn.

"By the time we had crossed the channel," the pilot told the news service, "the clouds were all gone and we made a perfect landfall."

"Suddenly we saw the airframe with a number of Messerschmitts on the ground."

"Coming in low we dipped down over the trees to within a few feet of the ground."

"Workmen at one end of the runway stared up blankly and we saw German officers scuttling for shelter. We gave them a burst."

"Our squadron strung out over the airfield and the bomb always had their chance. Apart from aircraft destroyed by the bombs, I think every machine on my beat along the landing ground will have to be written off. Many others were machine gunned."

"We bombed and machine gunned the hangars and shot up gun emplacements. One gun crew swung its gun toward us but a bomb dropped almost on top of them."

"As we turned, smoke was coming from all over the airfield and great spurts came from the middle of the buildings. There were two violent explosions. We left the whole landing ground fogged with smoke."

Only damage to R.A.F. planes was caused by their own bombs. A blast blew out the observer's window in the sergeant pilot's plane and the crew had a "rather draughty" flight home.

WHERE IRAQI ATTACKED BRITISH BASE

Cousin Of The King Safe

London.—Lord Louis Mountbatten, 40-year-old cousin of the King and commander of the destroyer Kelly, who was feared to have gone down with his ship off Crete, was reported safe in a cable received by Lady Mountbatten.

Several times, Mr. Roosevelt refused to answer questions, saying that the information involved would be just what Hitler would like to know.

Government legal experts said that although President Roosevelt's proclamation of a full emergency opened the door to control of radio, there was no provision in United States law for censorship of publications, even in wartime.

Some lawyers conceded that the president might affect the transmission of news through the power to suspend or amend rules and regulations under the Federal Communications Act, but that no direct censorship appeared possible.

Special orders have been drafted to make effective the new mobilization of American industry and manpower called for in President Roosevelt's proclamation of an unlimited national emergency. Informed officials indicated, British United Press says, that among the first of these "special decrees" might be an order to the maritime commission to requisition American merchant ships as needed. Many American-owned foreign flag ships, especially tankers, might fall within the scope of such action.

COMMANDING BRITISH

Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, who commanded the British troops in Greece. Gen. Wilson became general officer commanding the British forces in Egypt in 1939, and directed operations which carried the British troops to Benghazi. He was then appointed G.O.-in-Chief of British troops in Cyrenaica, and became military governor of that province.

He announced he would try an "experiment" shortly in rationing eggs. He gave no details.

The minister added he hoped he never would have to ration bread but believed he would ration milk. Complete control of fish prices will soon be announced, he said.

Vichy.—The bread ration was increased for the month of June while other commodities, with the exception of meat, remained practically the same as for May.

An announcement restoring the 14 per cent. cut in effect the past three months attributed the restoration to the accelerated passage of wheat between the occupied and unoccupied zones, due to transportation facilities made available by the German occupation authorities.

Ample Food Supplies

No Change In Britain During The Last Twelve Months

London.—Lord Woolton, minister of food, told the house of lords that Britain, after 20 months of war, is in as strong a position regarding food supplies as 12 months ago.

He announced he would try an "experiment" shortly in rationing eggs. He gave no details.

The minister added he hoped he never would have to ration bread but believed he would ration milk. Complete control of fish prices will soon be announced, he said.

Tour Is Uncertain

Prime Minister King Not Making Plans For Western Tour

Ottawa.—Reports that Prime Minister King will make a western speaking tour soon after parliament adjourns are not confirmed at the moment. It will depend upon war developments.

The proposal is advocated in some circles, which suggest Mr. King should make a series of patriotic addresses throughout the country and travel with a full complement of press and publicity men to focus the national spotlight on the war effort in other centres in succession. But Mr. King is not making arrangements very far ahead at the present stage of the war.

Considering New Plan

Changes In System Of Wheat Delivery Quotas May Be Made

Ottawa.—A different system of wheat delivery quotas may be instituted this year by the wheat board, though final decision will not be made until the probable size of the crop is foreseen.

Last year's system of a flat quota with regular increases applying evenly through the wheat board, though final decision will not be made until the probable size of the crop is foreseen.

Small flat quota of not more than five bushels with additional quotas based on proportionate yields. Anything like a small crop generally might easily eliminate the need of any quota, but inquiries are being made to determine whether changes in last year's system are desirable if quotas are needed.

Served On The Hood

Casualty List Includes Three Canadians Who Are Believed Lost

Ottawa.—Three officers of the Royal Canadian Navy are missing and believed killed in action with H.M.S. Hood, sunk off Greenland May 24, the Royal Canadian Navy said in a casualty list.

A footnote to the list said no other Canadians have been reported to date as serving on the Hood.

The list containing the three names brought the total number reported dead and missing by the Royal Canadian Navy since war began at 360.

NO REPEAL OF U. S. NEUTRALITY ACT AT PRESENT

Washington.—President Roosevelt said he has no intention at the present time of seeking congressional repeal of the Neutrality Act to permit United States merchant ships to enter British ports with cargoes of war supplies.

At a press conference, following his bedside chat in which he said "all additional measures necessary to deliver the goods" to Britain will be taken, the president indicated clearly it was not part of his plan to use American merchant ships.

The president declared, however, that the United States fleet in the Atlantic, which is used to patrol waters hundreds of miles off shore, is being strengthened and becoming more effective all the time.

But beyond that Mr. Roosevelt declined to go into explanation of his plan to assure delivery of war supplies to Britain. When reporters asked for details of his plan, he replied that Hitler, too, would like to know.

At the same time, Mr. Roosevelt indicated that steel priorities might be tightened in relation to non-essential industries as a result of a government survey that indicated an estimated deficit of 1,400,000 tons in 1941, and 6,000,000 tons in 1942. He said the shortage would not affect war industries which use 25 per cent. of the total production, but it probably would be necessary to ration civilian trades using the remaining 75 per cent.

The president said no additional action is contemplated at this time to implement his call for a cessation of strikes and his request that capital and labor abide by the decisions of impartial boards. But he went on to say that if strikes continue, some action will have to be taken. This was not said, he added, as a threat.

Several times, Mr. Roosevelt refused to answer questions, saying that the information involved would be just what Hitler would like to know.

CONFERENCE ON WHEAT IS TO BE ARRANGED SOON

Washington.—An international wheat conference will be called by the United States within the next few weeks, it was announced here by the state department.

Representatives of the four big exporting nations, Canada, Australia, Argentina and the United States, are expected to attend, as well as representatives of Britain, the chief and almost the only free importing nation left in the world.

It was suggested here in agricultural circles that the main purpose of the Washington conference would be to attempt to achieve agreement among the big four exporting nations to limit production.

At the present time, because of war conditions and the German occupation of practically all of Europe, the exporting nations are choked with wheat that cannot be sold. Canada, for instance, held 560,000 bushels on May 1 and this same surplus position was true to a greater or less extent in Australia, Argentina and the United States.

Several times in the past few years attempts have been made to limit production in the exporting nations in order to clear away accumulated surpluses that hung over the market. Agricultural sources here suggested the situation was more acute to-day than ever before and that something might be possible at least.

The United States clamped down quotas for wheat and wheat flour but gave Canada almost all the quota. Under a presidential proclamation the wheat quota for any 12-month period was placed at 800,000 bushels and Canada was allocated 795,000 bushels.

The flour quota was placed at 4,000,000 pounds and Canada's share 3,815,000 pounds.

The disclosure of the proposed conference was made in the release of an exchange of notes between the United States and Canada in connection with the quota action.

In a note to the Canadian government, the United States said:

"In taking the action referred to above, the government of the United States recognized that the wheat problem is, in fact, an international problem, in which the governments of Canada and the United States have mutual interest."

"It is for this reason that the government of the United States welcomes the recent indication of the Canadian government of its willingness to resume discussions on an international basis of the whole wheat surplus problem."

"The government of the United States accordingly proposes to extend invitations to such discussions in Washington in the near future."

Gasoline Control

Prospect Of Curtailment In The Consumption Of Gas

Toronto.—G. R. Cottrille, oil controller in the department of munitions and supply, said in a statement here that it is "necessary to control" prices of gasoline and that "we are faced with a curtailment in consumption whether we like rationing or not."

Cottrille said he could not say when gasoline price control would come into effect.

"Oil tankers ordinarily in use to supply the United States and Canadian markets from Gulf ports, the Dutch West Indies and South American countries are being drawn on for the trans-Atlantic service," said Mr. Cottrille. "There is no doubt that we are faced with a curtailment in consumption whether we like rationing or not."

Shows Great Increase

Ottawa.—An increase of $1,008,000 in gross value of commodities produced on Canadian farms during 1940 over production in 1939 was estimated by the Dominion bureau of statistics. Estimates place the gross value of 1940 at $1,235,714,000 compared with $1,224,616,000, the revised estimate for 1939.

Shot Without Trial

The officer had been investigating a report of illegal cattle slaughter on a farm at Walsztyn, near Lodz.

CANADA'S DOLLAR

CONSERVATION

Much complaint has been heard from business interests in the United States, especially those catering to tourists, that the drastic regulations of the Canadian Foreign Exchange Control Board are working an unfair hardship on them. They point to the fact that United States citizens may move into Canada and spend their money freely, without any restriction whatever, but that Canadians are permitted to bring only $25 of their own currency with them if they enter the United States.

There is a decided reason for Canada's restriction—a good reason. It needs explaining to the average citizen.

If "Angus MacLean," of Toronto, wanted to bring his family on a trip to the United States in normal times, he would take to a bank as much Canadian currency as he needed and exchange it for U.S. notes. That individual transaction would have no perceptible effect upon the exchange value of either country's currency—nor would it if a few thousand Canadians wanted to make a similar trip. But if a million tourists, or a number approaching that of normal times, should seek to make the trip each year, it might affect adversely the value of the Canadian dollar. For it is natural that the greater the demand for American dollars, the more they will cost.

Today the Canadian dollar is worth about 91 cents in United States currency. That is because American dollars are in heavy demand. They are needed desperately by Canada to pay for material purchased south of the border. Under the cash-and-carry provisions of the American neutrality law, Canada must pay cash; she has no war credit—an absurd situation for one of Uncle Sam's best customers. So the Dominion feels obliged to curb the further exchange of its currency for that of the United States.

Understanding the gallant effort Canada is making to aid the Mother Country, citizens of the United States will sympathize and be patient. —Christian Science Monitor, Boston.

Mrs. Becher, of Macleod, received a wire from Toronto on May 22nd, stating that her son-in-law, Mr. Hugh L. Dixon, had passed away suddenly from an attack of coronary thrombosis (a heart attack). His wife was formerly Miss Lillian Becher. They were married in Macleod fourteen years ago. A son, Bobby, ten years of age, also survives.

First of its kind in the history of vacation industry here, a five-day tour of Alberta mountain and other resorts was carried out last week. Representatives of newspapers, travel bureaus, hotel men, chambers of commerce and others travelled by bus over the Banff-Jasper highway, to Lake Louise, Banff, Radium, Cranbrook, Pincher Creek, Waterton Lakes and Macleod. The tour was organized under direction of the provincial government publicity and travel bureau following decision reached at the recent tourist trade conference held in Edmonton. Purpose is to acquaint those interested in the growing industry with Alberta and neighboring roads and resorts, better to fit them for selling Alberta's scenic wealth to visitors.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Unemployment Insurance becomes an actuality in Canada from July 1st. For the workers who are subject to periods of unemployment through no fault of their own, it will mean the difference between being on relief or charity and the self-respect of having provided for their own welfare through a plan of insurance savings.

The plan is one of co-operation between the employer, the employee and the government. Each makes a contribution based on the weekly wages earned by the employee. To the amount contributed by the employer and the amount deducted from the employee's wages, the government adds one-fifth of the total, and pays for the cost of operation. These contributions are similar to insurance premiums, and accumulate against the day when the worker, either male or female, becomes unemployed. Then, in a very short time the worker begins to receive weekly cheques which will continue for a limited period.

This, briefly, is the Unemployment Insurance Plan, which becomes a law in Canada, just as it has been a law in Great Britain for more than thirty years. With the experience of the British act, as well as the examples of other countries to draw upon, the Unemployment Insurance Commission has created a plan which should operate with the least inconvenience to the employer, and to the greatest possible benefit to the workers.

A unique and simple system of making contributions to the fund through the employer purchasing special stamps from the post office and affixing them each week in a book designed for the purpose, is the record of each worker's contributions, as well as the employer's. In this way, every worker can find out exactly at any time where he or she stands in respect to unemployment insurance.

There are some classes of workers who are not eligible for unemployment insurance, and there are certain conditions which affect all workers. Both employers and employees should familiarize themselves with the terms of the plan which will be made available by the postmaster in the locality you live.

A part of the plan is the opening of employment offices throughout Canada, where workers may seek jobs and employers can seek workers. These offices will be opened as rapidly as possible to facilitate the most effective utilization of Canada's labor force during the war, and in preparation for the return of workers to peacetime employment after war work has ceased.

Health education and preventive medicine are part of the clinic's work, in addition to diagnosis, dental work, vaccinations and minor surgical operations.

A certain Social Credit member tried to embarrass the position of the Canadian newspapers in the eyes of the public when he asked in the house of commons for the names of the publications which carried war campaign advertising without charge. It is true that the display advertising is paid for, but the columns and columns of supporting reading matter and editorial opinion is not paid for. This was what is known as a "political fast one," for very few members in the house of commons could give answer and do justice to the publications involved. We, as newspapers, might also ask how many members of parliament are serving without pay in the interests of the war effort. —Clareholm Local Press.

THE FUNCTION OF THE REPORTER

A reporter is of necessity an impartial observer of the happenings of the community. Officially, it matters little to him what action a town council may take in any given matter. As an impartial observer a news item stating one side of a controversy is just as important as an item conveying the other side. In other words he is not a biased witness of any event. He is interested only from the standpoint of news.

Perhaps the actions of a reporter at a meeting sometimes seem unusual, but they have to be unusual because he is, as we have said, only an observer and not a participant in an event. It will be noticed that he does not applaud when a speaker makes some remarks that please the audience. He does not join in the programme, unless it is to stand when the national anthem is sung. He is merely an onlooker and is reporting the course of events, not for the benefit of those at the meeting, but for the whole community.

To paraphrase a famous poem "this is not to reason why." That phrase adequately describes the reporter's attitude toward any assignment he is called upon to cover. He should not be expected to take part in the proceedings unless he is personally interested as a member of the group.

A reporter recently covered a temperance meeting and was asked to express his opinion on the liquor question. This he declined to do, and rightly so, because he was attending the meeting as a representative of his newspaper and not as a member of the temperance federation.

Newspaper reporters are often asked to keep things out of the paper, or to soft pedal on some news item. The conscientious reporter will never make any promises to do this. This is the prerogative of the editor only, and the only thing a reporter can do is take the matter up with his editor. Sometimes a bribe is offered, and if one really wants to earn the ill-will of a reporter this is the surest way to do it. The newspaperman who accepts a bribe is breaking faith with his profession, and he never remains a newspaperman very long.

Reporters have a very difficult job. They are surrounded by people who want special favors that he has not the power to grant. In practically every instance the reporter is worthy of the fullest confidence. He is a hard working person who is trying to play the game, trying to serve his community, and is finding his satisfaction in life, not from the ordinary pleasures of life, but from following the most fascinating calling known to mankind.

When one is tempted to invite a reporter to forget his code of ethics, it is well to remember that he has no power to assure you of immunity from publicity or of special consideration. That responsibility rests solely with the editor. Never blame a reporter for what appears in your newspaper. He is just doing the job he is paid for. The editor is the man who decides the issues.

YES, IT'S FUEL, ALRIGHT!

To add fuel to the flames, more free publicity was received this week. 'Tis a pity so much effort is wasted and mails uselessly cluttered up. Everyone who sends out this free publicity stuff appears to think that "the world is waiting for the sunrise" and their particular message or propaganda. —MacLeod Gazette.

On exhibition at Slavery on Saturday was "Peggy," the hairless horse. Peggy has been on exhibition all over the United States, and has appeared in Ripley's column of "Believe it or not." The freak animal was born at High River nine years ago, weighs 1400 pounds, is normal in every way, but has never grown hair. It is owned by Mr. Phillips. This was its first showing in Canada.

Running to an air raid shelter during one of Herr Hitler's daily raids over London, one cockney scrubwoman said to another: "Blimey, if those bombings keep up, we'll all be blowed to maternity." "Rights," replied her fellow worker, "and with all these blackouts, we won't even know who did it!"

Sir Arthur Whitten-Brown, of the Alcock and Brown team that made the first trans-Atlantic airplane flight 22 years ago, has been named Lieutenant-Colonel and Battalion Commander of the Home Guard, according to information from London. On June 14-15, in 1919, Brown, then a young American lieutenant, and the late John Alcock, then a British Army captain, flew the Atlantic from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Clifden, Ireland, in 16 hours and 15 minutes. Flight was made in a twin-engine Vickers-Vimy plane and hailed as the greatest aerial event in history up to that time. They split $40,000 in prizes and were knighted.

Reduced rates for automobiles shipped down the Great Lakes between Port Arthur and Port William to Port McNicol, are announced by the C.P.R. The season opens June 14, and those making the trip and taking their cars along are urged to get their reservations in early. Otherwise, they may be delayed and put to some personal inconvenience that could otherwise be avoided. Autos, accompanied by one or more passengers, each holding a valid first-class ticket, will be carried in each direction at $7 or $12, depending on the length of the trip. There are also moderate charges for trailers or house cars.

"GOD BLESS OUR BRAVE DADDY OVERSEAS"

FOR EVERY CANADIAN who sails the deep, for every airman who flashes through the skies, and for every other man in the fighting forces, the prayers of the nation "rise like a fountain, night and day."

In times of crisis our people stand steadfast. In daily devotions they renew the flame of faith and arm with unseen powers their warriors in the field.

Oftentimes they discern the Unseen Hand. Witness the miracle of Dunkirk. Witness, too, in the darkest hours the emergence of great inspiring figures to steady the ranks of Democracy and fire its courage and confidence.

WAKE UP, CANADIANS!

The following poem was received as a contribution from the Pincher Creek committee:

Wake up, Canadians! We are not asking to give.

But LEND our idle dollars, that Democracy may live—

Those dollars that are needed, for our boys, who overseas

Are risking, every day, their lives, that we may live in ease.

Wake up, Canadians! We ALL are in this fight.

To crush the Nazi evil that would rule the world by might.

The most that we can LEND is but the least that we can do

To show we've all made up our minds to see this struggle through.

Wake up, Canadians! Before it is too late,

Before our skies, now clear and blue, are filled with wings of hate.

Before our cities and our towns are bombed, as they will be,

If we don't use our dollars to send help across the sea.

Wake up, Canadians! They've put it up to us,

We've got to help, to stop this thing, and do it without fuss.

We've never heard the crash of bombs, and quiet nights we spend.

If we would save our freedom, let us lend! and lend! and lend!!!

NATIONAL PARKS OF CANADA

The Enterprise is greatly indebted to Mr. Robert J. C. Stead, superintendent of publicity and information, National Parks Branch, Ottawa, for copies of two beautiful booklets descriptive of the National Parks and Playgrounds of The Prairies and Eastern Canada. They are issued by the department with a view to not only stimulating a greater interest in our parks and playgrounds by our own people, but to be circulated throughout the United States and other civilized countries to boost Canada's holiday resorts and playgrounds. These two booklets describe the following parks: Riding Mountain, Prince Albert, Elk Island, Nemiskam and Wood Buffalo on the prairies; Cape Breton Highlands, Prince Edward Island, St. Lawrence Islands, Georgian Bay Islands, Point Pelee, Louisbourg, Fort Royal, Fort Anne, Fort Beauséjour, Fort Leno, Fort Chambly, Fort Wellington and Fort Malden, in Eastern Canada. We understand that a third booklet, descriptive of Mount Revelstoke, Glacier, Yoho, Kootenay, Jasper, Banff and Waterton parks, a Western Canada, will follow shortly.

These booklets are entitled "Playgrounds of Eastern Canada," "Playgrounds of the Prairies" and "Playgrounds of the West."

Copies may be seen at our office, or may be procured upon application to the Lands, Parks and Forests Branch, Department of Mines and Resources, National Parks Bureau, Ottawa.

TONS OF ODD SWEETMEAT SHIPPED FROM YORKSHIRE

A curious Yorkshire sweetmeat, Pontefract "cakes," is growing in popularity overseas. It looks like a black coin for it carries a stamp by which it has been known since the days of George III.

These tiny "cakes" are made from liquorice, a plant brought to the South Yorkshire town in the 16th century. A hundred years later, one George Dunhill made the first Pontefract "cakes" by mixing the extract from boiled liquorice roots with sugar and other ingredients.

Since then the number of these round black sweets sent overseas has reached an astronomical total. The United States and Canada in particular are taking even more of them than they did before the war. A huge consignment weighing five tons has recently been shipped to Canada.

A province-wide educational programme through daily and weekly newspaper advertising has been adopted by the British Columbia Social Credit League. It was announced by A. D. Croer, president, Vancouver, who stated that after several months sampling of various media of public education they had found newspaper space most effective. When asked who would make the proposed tour of the province to lay the groundwork for an organization, Mr. Croer stated that Premier Aberhart, of Alberta, and several social credit members of the federal parliament had been invited to take part.

WHY CANADIANS FIGHT TO KEEP THE NAZIS AWAY

All trade unions in Canada would be dissolved under Nazi domination. Collective bargaining, which workers have secured after years of struggle, would be wiped out overnight.

Canadian parents would be deprived of the right to decide what their children should be taught.

Christianity would be censored and teachers instructed by Nazi authorities as to what they should and should not teach.

All Canadian business would come under the thumb of Germany.

Workers would no longer be able to choose their own trade, nor would they be allowed to select a living place of their own fancy.

There would be butler days for all citizens if butler were needed for export to Germany.

Old-age pensions would be a thing of the past.

Widows' and mothers' allowances would be stopped.

Developed sections of the country would be cleared of Canadians to make room for German immigrants. There would be no more minimum wage act.

Canadians would step from the sidewalk to the roadway to allow German officers to pass. Canadian citizens would be forced to give the Nazi salute or court imprisonment.

Canadian newspapers would no longer express the opinion of Canadians, and would submit all news items and editorials to the Nazi censor.

Radio programmes would be produced to suit the purpose of the aggressor.

Public meetings, when allowed, would be watched by the Gestapo.

Taxation to provide indemnities to Germany would be heavier than Canada's present taxation.

Masonic lodges and all fraternal orders and organizations would be dissolved.

Theatres would be banned with Nazi propaganda material, and moving pictures would be subject to rigid censorship.

Books which would fall to meet the pleasure of the Nazi authorities would be burned or banned.

Private telephones, if permitted, would be subject to "tapping" by Nazi agents.

Travel from one section of the country to another, if only for a visit, would be subject to permission from the Nazis.

"Oh, I have an excellent job here," was the reply. "I sit on top of the Eiffel Tower and watch for the English to wave the white flag."

"And the pay—is it good?"
"No," admitted the other, "but it's a job for life."

HAPPY OVER VICTORY

The controversy between the operators and miners of the Coleman mines has come to an end and the men have resumed work in a happier frame of mind than they have known for many years.

They feel they have gained a two-point victory. Firstly, by the demonstration of solidarity exhibited, and secondly, with the wiping out of the insecurity and unsettled feeling of the past. It provides them with a glow that the company complied with their requests.

With the new feeling of solidarity, the discarding of the previous thought and fear that any seeming effort on their part would fail, the Coleman mine workers walked out as one man on April 1st. It has acted as a wonderful stimulant all around.

Concerning the dispute itself, the new determination of the men no doubt convinced the coal companies that they were in earnest and this impression had, undoubtedly, a good deal to do with the companies agreeing to what all other companies had previously agreed to.

The demands of the miners were won in spite of much agitation against them, in which the local press took a prominent part. With multiple agencies of publicity working against them it has buoyed up the men in the knowledge that they won, in spite of those working for their defeat.

The Roosevelt victory in the States, with the vast majority of the press screaming for his defeat, found a close parallel in Coleman. The press of Coleman might well learn from the latest episode, that policies which appeal to the majority of the people of Coleman would be a constructive change, and bring about a truly representative press in Coleman.

The results of the victory at Coleman was represented in the May Day gathering held all over the Pias, and there were many high heads in the large Coleman contingent. The meeting, if it meant anything at all, symbolized truly the motto "all for one and one for all."

The Coleman mine workers take this opportunity to express their appreciation of the support and well wishes of the men of District 18 in their latest fight. — Coleman Correspondent to the Canadian Mineworker.

DON'T EMULATE DIONNE!

On the occasion of the arrival of twins to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morgan, of Hartmann, an Olds district poet coughed up the following clever lines: Since time began, 'tis aptly said Two equal one when they are wed.

And so it was with Jack and Win. When in their turn they started in. Peace reign'd sublime within their cot. All happiness their daily lot. Then one bright day came a surprise; The stork flew down from out the skies And laid a bundle at their door With pretty ribbon bows galore.

And here is where the fun begins For in the bundle they found TWINS! So there we see not one for two As would suffice for me and you.

And not two girls or just two boys To gladden all their days with joy; For when the ribbons they unfurl They find a BOY and then a GIRL!

If two make one, then, we ask you: How in the world can one make two? Yet there they are as sure as fate A pigeon pair bang up to date.

Why, which, how, where, what DOES it mean? Is something wrong with our poor bean?

WELL—
Congratulations! Jack and Win, If you can hear us through the din We know you will our fun excuse For with glad joy we all entice; Though, Jack, when future skies you con

"Farmers and workers cannot remain passive in the struggle. LOTS OF MONEY IN SIGHT

As at March 31st there was on deposit in the chartered banks of Canada, $2,900,000,000, of which $2,750,000,000 belonged to the Canadian people and $150,000,000 to the Dominion government.

There is no mystery to the financial operation by which through the purchase of Victory Loan bonds the people of Canada will transfer from $900,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 of purchasing power to the government. The money is simply checked out of the people's accounts into the government's account. The government immediately starts to pay it out again to the people and by the end of the year it will all be back in the public's deposits and the minister of finance will be getting ready to borrow it again.

Word was received last week end of the death of Mr. Lewis Hulbert in Nova Scotia, where he had taken up residence seven months ago. While here he associated himself with the West Canadian Colliers' band and the Coleman town band.

The UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE PLAN

To the Employer...

Contributions to the Unemployment Insurance Fund become payable as from July 1st, 1941.

Contributions are made by the employer and the employee, and are paid by the purchase of Unemployment Insurance stamps by the employer from the Post Office.

Stamps will be affixed to a special book, called the Insurance Book, by the employer. The book is the employee's record of contributions, and when he becomes unemployed it forms the record from which insurance benefits may be paid. Full details will be sent to you, when you have returned the postcard attached to a form which is now in the mails.

The plan of procedure has been adopted after consultation with employer and employee associations and is one which has been based upon thirty years' experience in Great Britain.

The Dominion Government adds 20% to the combined employer-employee contributions.

HON. NORMAN A. McLEARY,
Minister of Labour

Contributions, and in addition, pays the administration costs which include the operation of a National Employment Service for the convenience of employers and employees.

Contributions are payable by all persons while in employment and by their employers, with the exceptions listed in the postal below.

The first duty of every employer will be to REGISTER WITH THE COMMISSION by completing the postcard attached to a form which is now in the mails, and obtaining and issuing insurance books for all his employees. If there is doubt as to whether employees, or any of them, are insurable, ask for instructions when you return the postal card. If you do not receive a form through the mail go to the nearest Post Office and ask for one. All employers must complete registration prior to June 14th, 1941.

Early Klondike Days

Hardy Pioneers Who Gave Yast Bigger To The World

Early Klondike days in the Canadian Yukon are recalled by Canada's most northerly historic site, a bronze tablet at the entrance to the Administration Building in Dawson City, Yukon. Erected some years ago by the Department of Mines and Resources on the advice of the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada, this memorial tablet pays perpetual tribute to the memory of the hardy pioneers whose determination and courage gave vast riches to the world.

Braving extreme dangers and untold hardships, those indomitable prospectors and miners ventured through the Chilkoot and Chilkoot Passes into the unexplored valley of the Yukon to pave the way for the discovery of the rich gold fields with which the names of Robert Henderson and George W. Carmack are inseparably associated. For many years gold had been prospected for in the Yukon, but none of the discoveries created any great excitement until the rich find was made on Bonanza Creek on August 17, 1896. Had this lucky strike not been made it is possible that the treasures of Bonanza, Eldorado, Hunker, Dominion, Gold River, and many others might still lie hidden away in the bedrock and gravel covered by the heavy forests that grew in the valleys.

After almost half a century the Yukon continues to be an important producer of gold, but the pan, rocker and sluicing methods of the early Klondike miners have been replaced by huge hydro-electric power dredges. Although many of the hardy Yukon pioneers have passed on, each year their dwindling ranks parade to celebrate Discovery Day, when stirring tales of long ago are again retold.

Fifty Years Ago

Story in Old Paper Tells How Niagara Gorge Was Crossed

In the Hamilton, Ont., Spectator of April 30, 1891, fifty years ago, was republished an account, taken from the Buffalo Courier, of what is described as "Niagara's first bridge." Those who nowadays venture to cross the whirlpool on the aerial railway little realize that they are repeating an experience on a much more elaborate and safer scale, of pioneers of almost a century ago, who, according to the interesting record referred to, were in the habit of crossing the gorge in a small, basket-like contraption. In 1840 a charter was granted by the state of New York to the International Bridge Company to construct a bridge across the river, the Niagara Falls Suspension Bridge Company receiving a similar charter from the Canadian authorities. A joint board of directors was formed, which entered into a contract with Charles Ellet, Junior, bridge builder of Philadelphia, to erect a railway bridge about two miles below the falls. In the year 1847 the work was started, and as a preliminary means of communication a cable was stretched across the river fastened to two high wooden towers, one on each bank.

On this cable was hung the basket, made of iron, suspended by two grooved wheels and hauled by means of a drum geared to a crankshaft.

The method of alighting the cable over the gorge is of particular interest. A prize of ten dollars was offered by Theodore Graves Hulet—the engineer in charge of this part of the work, who, he writes, the cable was stretched across the river fastened to two high wooden towers, one on each bank.

"It is a curious fact that of the thousands of persons crossing the gorge in the little basket, three-fourths were ladies," it is stated. "It was intended to seat comfortably two persons, though four were sometimes crowded in. The first passage was made in the spring of 1848 by Engineer Ellet." Which proves that the ladies of the period were not lacking in courage, for it must have been something of an ordeal to make such a journey.

Famous Car Manufacturer

Lord Austin Dies At His Home in England

As Herbert Austin he went to Australia to serve his engineering apprenticeship after being educated at Brampton College and returned to England in 1880.

After managing the Wolseley Tool and Motor Car Co., Ltd., he began manufacturing his own cars in 1905. His plant, Longbridge Works, Northfield, Birmingham, became the home of one of Britain's most widely used automobiles, both the large Austin and pint-sized "baby" Austin.

In 1936, he was created first Baron Austin of Longbridge.

That year he gave $112,500 to the Cavendish Laboratory of Experimental Physics at Cambridge University, for which he received the thanks of the then Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin.

Lord Austin was in the House of Commons as a Conservative representing a Birmingham constituency from 1919 to 1924. He was known as high tariff man and supported Lord Beaverbrook's Imperial economic policy plan.

No Plus Or Minus

Night Bombing Means Destruction On Both Sides Of Channel

The New York Sun says: Accounts of the German raid on London and of the British raid on Hamburg tell of tremendous destruction at a cost to the attacker, in each instance, of a number of planes and trained flyers. The cost of night bombing has not yet become prohibitive. As the British become better equipped with bombers the mutual destructiveness mounts. There is no plus and minus to this score; night bombing on a big scale means the destruction on both sides of the Channel of much that has been identified as modern civilization.

General Wladislaw Sikorski, Premier of the Polish Government in exile, returned to Britain from America in a bomber after a stay of nearly two months in Canada and the United States.

The shift was seen in some quarters as marking a new era of even closer collaboration with Germany.

BEGINNING OF WORLD MISSIONS

Golden text: And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. Mark 16:15.

Lesson: Acts 12:25—13:12.

Devotional reading: Psalm 72:6-13.

Explanations and Comments

The First Foreign Missionary Work, Acts 13:4-12. Under orders of their Commander-in-Chief—"being sent forth by the Spirit"—Barnabas and Paul set forth on their mission. They followed the Orontes River to Seleucia, the seaport of Antioch, and took ship there for the island of Cyprus.

"Historically this is the precise moment at which the foreign missionary enterprise actually began. The fact that we are Christians ourselves, dates back to that obedience of those men in that little ship. They took the little tree of Christianity and transplanted it from the cramping flower-pot of Judaism into the soil of humankind for the whole world. It is an apparently tiny act which, in simple fact, when looked at down the centuries, is the beginning of the world's history as we know it."

Malcolm, the nearest harbor of the island, they stayed a while and preached to the Jews in their synagogue. John Mark was their attendant. Being travelling preachers, they were given at least one hearing in each Jewish synagogue visited.

They travelled the length of the island, and at Paphos, on the west coast, they met the proconsul, Sergius Paulus. It is interesting that a Roman inscription has been found in which Sergius Paulus is expressly named as holding the office of proconsul.

With the proconsul was a sorcerer, a Samaritan named Elymas, as he was called in Greek. We know that magicians of all kinds were favorably received in Roman society, and it is not at all remarkable that one of them had gained an influence with the proconsul. Sergius Paulus desired to hear the word of God and sent for Barnabas and Paul, but Elymas opposed them and endeavored to turn them from the faith. He knew that if the proconsul accepted the faith of Paul he himself would lose his power over him, and doubtless much material advantage as well.

But Saul, who is also called Paul (and from now on Luke uses only the Roman name of Paul, for Paul is committed to the task of evangelizing the Gentiles), "filled with the Holy Spirit," bitterly denounced the sorcerer. "You make of trickery and rascality," that is the way Paul begins, and he follows it up with another shot—"You son of the devil, you enemy of the truth, you who are perverting the straight paths of the Lord?" (C. E. Jefferson).

Paul then announced to the sorcerer that he should become blind and this at once came about. "Virtually Paul pronounced sentence: If he chooses to be spiritually and mentally blind, then he is blind physically. Learn what blindness really is" (R. C. Gillette). We quote in passing that in Korea to-day the profession of witchcraft is reserved for the blind.

The blindness of Elymas helped to open the eyes of the proconsul. When he saw Elymas seeking someone to lead him by the hand, Sergius Paulus believed, being astonished at the teachings of the Lord.

CARBON MONOXIDE

Carbon Monoxide is the gas that kills you when you run your motor car in an enclosed space such as a garage with the doors closed. The public should be educated on all phases of the hazard. Persons likely to come in close contact with high concentrations of carbon monoxide, such as policemen and firemen need especially to be informed of the hazard.

The gas does not appear in nature; it results almost entirely from incomplete oxidation, or the burning of material containing carbon. It is present during electrical storms, when buildings burn up and after explosions and fires in mines. It is also produced in lime, brick and charcoal kilns; in the laboratory it is produced by heating formic acid and oxalic acid with sulphuric acid. It is found in smoke and in rooms which have been painted and sealed. It has even been reported formed from burning cigarettes.

Carbon monoxide is particularly dangerous because it has no smell. It is colourless and should not be confused with carbon dioxide gas, the one that is excreted from the lungs in breathing.

The asphyxiated person is comatose, the temperature usually above normal; the skin is pale, but the lips are nearly always scarlet red and there is a scarlet blush on the cheeks and sometimes over the whole body. The early symptoms are entirely due to the fact that the haemoglobin (the red colouring matter of the blood), has a much greater affinity for carbon monoxide than for oxygen. The remedy for the asphyxiation of carbon monoxide is artificial respiration done by the Schafer method and kept up for at least one and a half hours. The patient should be kept warm and no exertion permitted.

Extension Of Production Activities In The West

"Extension of production activities is regarded as desirable for war purposes and we already have several parties of geologists working in the Turner Valley region."

CHAPTER IX.

Devona had no idea how long she had been sitting there, face pressed against the cool iron balustrade, cheeks fanned by the warm, fragrant breeze just stirring from the garden below, the dream in her heart matching the beauty of the star-spangled night. Then, as if he'd stepped right out of that dream, Dale had come, striding across the empty patio below.

Devona recognized him instantly, even in the shadow. No one else walked with that same, long, even stride. Smiling, she felt the breath stop in her throat.

Dale stood for a moment beside the black, shimmering pool. Then slowly he turned back toward the house, hands thrust deep into his coat pockets. He stood watching the lighted windows below. If only he'd look up, she dreamed on, still not really believing she wouldn't wake up soon. Look up and speak to her.

As if he'd heard her thought, Dale did glance up, take a step nearer. Then he grinned, waved at her.

"Hello, there, Juliet on your balcony," he called in a husky stage whisper. "You are Juliet, aren't you? Or am I seeing things?"

Laughing softly, she nodded. "And thou, dear Romeo. Who let you in?"

"I scaled you wall, fair lady, just for a glimpse of thee."

"Then thou must beware my vengeful kinsmen," she said, not realizing how nearly she spoke the truth.

Dale nodded, glanced toward the lighted windows below. "It's much too swell an evening to stay inside. And perfect for a swim. Look, why don't you slide into a suit and come on down?"

Devona hesitated. It was pretty late. Still—why not? I'll be with you in a minute."

It was only a minute before she slipped out of her room, fingers still fumbling as she stuffed her soft hair under a bathing cap. At the head of the stairs she hesitated. Below, in the main hall, she could hear Vars holding her guests good night. Better use the servants' stairway at the back. It would spare any painful encounter with Vars. And she couldn't bear any more of that. Not to-night, anyway. Not with Dale waiting.

Fleeing, light-footed, along the narrow hall behind the kitchen and servants' quarters, Devona came, unexpectedly, face to face with Wong. A very jaunty fellow in bright-striped sport coat and rakish panama. Obviously started to meet her, he hid surprise almost instantly behind a bobbing little bow, pulled off the panama.

"Yes, miss. Was there anything for you, miss?"

"No, thank you Wong." Again that strange feeling of repulsion. Instinctively, Devona pulled her bathing cap closer and hurried past him.

A Pleasant Habit
DAILY MAIL

The water, cool and invigorating, slapped against the tiled sides of the pool as they swam.

A little later they hoisted themselves to the pool's edge, sat dripping, gasping for breath, laughing about nothing in particular, except that laughing together was fun.

The dry desert air was like a warm shawl, and as they relaxed and sat smoking and talking, Devona caught herself crossing her fingers lest anything should break the spell.

"It's glorious out here," Dale said once, stretching his long body luxuriously on the soft grass, so that he lay looking up at the star-studded sky. "You'd never think anything could go wrong in a world that looked as perfect as this."

"Does it? Go wrong for you, I mean?" Devona asked, curled in the lawn swing so that she could watch his face in the moonlight and keep her own safely hidden by shadow.

"Sure. Often." He laughed—a short, bitter little sound. "Plenty wrong."

"I don't know why. If I did, it might help." He frowned at the moon's bland face for a minute. "But just when I think things are all set for a magnificent showdown something goes haywire."

"A showdown?" puzzled, Devona echoed.

"Yes. A raid. I mean. I know these boys are putting the stuff through. And I get everything lined up for the night they are expecting a big shipment, and then—"

He snapped his fingers—"it blows up." Somebody's on to every move I make and I'll be damned if I can catch up with him."

Dale ran strong fingers through his hair, curling damp now, and making him look as he must have when he was a sturdy 10-year-old. Devona thought, smiling.

"It's been uncanny!" he went on, savagely. "Like having some mind reader tell you what you're thinking right while you're thinking it. If it could just plug up this leak—"

Now his moment of seriousness exchanged for his usual good-humored teasing. "Look here, why do I always unload my grief on you when—"

Devona recognized him instantly, even in the shadow. No one else walked with that same, long, even stride. Smiling, she felt the breath stop in her throat.

Dale stood for a moment beside the black, shimmering pool. Then slowly he turned back toward the house, hands thrust deep into his coat pockets. He stood watching the lighted windows below. If only he'd look up, she dreamed on, still not really believing she wouldn't wake up soon. Look up and speak to her.

As if he'd heard her thought, Dale did glance up, take a step nearer. Then he grinned, waved at her.

"Hello, there, Juliet on your balcony," he called in a husky stage whisper. "You are Juliet, aren't you? Or am I seeing things?"

Laughing softly, she nodded. "And thou, dear Romeo. Who let you in?"

"Then thou must beware my vengeful kinsmen," she said, not realizing how nearly she spoke the truth.

Dale nodded, glanced toward the lighted windows below. "It's much too swell an evening to stay inside. And perfect for a swim. Look, why don't you slide into a suit and come on down?"

Devona hesitated. It was pretty late. Still—why not? I'll be with you in a minute."

It was only a minute before she slipped out of her room, fingers still fumbling as she stuffed her soft hair under a bathing cap. At the head of the stairs she hesitated. Below, in the main hall, she could hear Vars holding her guests good night. Better use the servants' stairway at the back. It would spare any painful encounter with Vars. And she couldn't bear any more of that. Not to-night, anyway. Not with Dale waiting.

Fleeing, light-footed, along the narrow hall behind the kitchen and servants' quarters, Devona came, unexpectedly, face to face with Wong. A very jaunty fellow in bright-striped sport coat and rakish panama. Obviously started to meet her, he hid surprise almost instantly behind a bobbing little bow, pulled off the panama.

"Yes, miss. Was there anything for you, miss?"

"No, thank you Wong." Again that strange feeling of repulsion. Instinctively, Devona pulled her bathing cap closer and hurried past him.

ever after, and all that stuff."

"Of course. Don't you?" He shrugged, half-serious, half in fun. "Once upon a time I did. Then I grew up to be an attorney and found out people never do anything just for love."

"Oh, but they do!" Devona protested. "Love—"

"Makes the world go round," he interrupted. "Sure, I heard that once too. But I got over it. It's money, my sweet, that makes everything go. Money and more money. And the sooner you learn that in this cockeyed world—" he shrugged, and the gesture included the patio, the rambling stucco hacienda, even the whole glorious night—"the better off you'll be. Everybody has his price, I've found."

"That's not so!" Flushed, she tried to defend her most cherished ideal.

Dale laughed again. "You'll learn little Miss Innocence. I'm warning you. Put your romantic notions in cold storage. They won't stand much daylight."

Little Miss Innocence, Devona realized what he really was telling her. She'd worn her heart in plain sight—and of course he'd seen it, felt sorry for her, and her "romantic notions." He knew she'd fallen head over heels at first sight, and gentleman that he was, he didn't want her to make a fool of herself.

Something hard and painful thrust itself into her throat, cut off anything she might have thought to say to hide the awful hurt of his rebuff. So the silence hung, painfully, for a moment. Then Dale turned toward her again.

"Smatter? Did I hurt your feelings?"

"Of course not, silly. I—I was just trying to decide whether to take one more plunge before I go in," she fabricated quickly, faked a smile.

"Good idea. Come on," and pulled her up after him.

They swam again, up and down the shimmering pool. But somehow, the water was colder now, the gay camaraderie gone, and they climbed out of the water.

"You're shivering," Dale said, and flung her cap around her shoulders. "Better run in before you catch your death."

Devona recognized him instantly, even in the shadow. No one else walked with that same, long, even stride. Smiling, she felt the breath stop in her throat.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, supplies your energy, stores your reserves to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, drowsy and tired, can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headache, backache, dizziness, draggled out all the time. For over 25 years thousands have won prompt relief from these ailments—with Fruit-A-Tives. So can you now. Try Fruit-A-Tives—you'll be simply amazed how easily you feel like a new person, happy and well again. 25c, 50c.

FRUIT-A-TIVES

Drawing the long bathing cape tight around her, Devona ran up the stairs, along the silent passageway to her room. She'd have to get out of this wet suit before—

But as she pushed open her own door, the door closed and she found herself open. Vars, a cool white goddess in a flowing negligee, stared at her with hostile gray eyes.

"Please, will you come in here a moment," she wanted to speak to you."

"Certainly." Trembling, and not entirely because of the clammy wet suit, Devona stepped past her mother into the elaborate boudoir, heard the click of the door closing behind her, and felt, somehow, as if a trap had shut its jaws.

Canada's Naval Strength

Number Of Vessels Will Be Doubled By Next April

The Canadian Navy's strength in ships will be doubled by next April in comparison to the number now available, and 8,000 more men will be added to the Navy in that time, Navy Minister Macdonald said in a recent address.

"Where our Canadian Navy now has 200 ships and a total strength of 18,000 officers and men, we shall have 400 ships and 26,000 men in naval service by next April," he said.

Mr. Macdonald praised the Canadian sailor, saying that there is not a port in the world where either a Canadian sailor or ship cannot be found. He said that Canada's speed in shipbuilding is satisfactory and added that there "never has been any question of a shortage of naval volunteers."

The minister coupled a declaration that this war is one "of machinery and not men" with the assertion that Canada will spend nearly as much in 1942 as was spent by the nation in the entire four years of the First Great War.

Some people, said Mr. Macdonald, have asked why Canada does not turn out more ships and men. The Navy Minister said it takes time to train men, and years to train a man fully for command of one of Canada's larger vessels.

Saving Tea in Britain

Chemists Find That You Can Use Tea Leaves Over Again

You may not be able to empty your teapot, fill it up again with hot water and a little of something else—and get a second brew out of it better than the first.

The British War Office wanted to know what to do with 16 tons of spent tea leaves left behind every day in the Army camps.

Scientists said they would take the tea for experiments, and now they have told the War Office that if the Army keeps its tea leaves instead of throwing them away after use, adds a little chemical and uses again with hot water they will have their tea again as good as new.

The secret may be made available to the public if the objections of the customs and excise department can be overcome.

The department has told the war office that ancient acts of parliament forbid the drying or fabrication of any tea leaves which have been used.

Scientists say the chemical that must be added to the spent tea leaves is easy to make and cheap. By using it, millions of pounds of money and valuable shipping space will be saved.

Arrangement Is Reciprocal

Oddity Of War In Connection With Right To Use Inventions

This interesting story by Clifford Webb appeared in the London Daily Herald:

We are still sending money to Germany for the privilege of making use of German inventions. Some of these inventions are so closely allied to our war effort that they are undoubtedly directly responsible for the deaths of thousands of Nazis. And the same thing is happening in the reverse direction—Germans are paying Britain for the right to use inventions through which Britons are being killed and maimed.

This is how this oddity of the war works:

Certain firms in this country acquired, before the war, patent rights from Germany, enabling them, on payment of a fixed annual sum, to manufacture articles invented by Germany. Each year their license to manufacture these goods was renewable on payment of the agreed fee. These annual fees are still being paid—through neutral countries—to inventors in Germany.

An official at the patent office, in London, told me that there is "a complete answer." "The arrangement," he said, "is reciprocal. The Germans are using some of our patents and are remitting the renewal fees to us, in the same way that we are remitting fees to them. There is no considerable sum of money involved."

"The pre-war system of renewal payments is kept going because it not only protects holders of patents in this country, but also protects manufacturers who have laid down expensive plants to manufacture patented articles. If patents were allowed to expire anybody could take up manufacture of the articles concerned. All these people would have three-party rights in any patent arrangements after the war, and the position then would be chaotic. Both here and in Germany, it is felt that the present system is justifiable."

So there you have it; the queerest story of the war. Some British Germans who have like poison may still be receiving from us, each year, some of our precious foreign exchange. This solely because, years ago, he invented some gadget which is now being used to kill as many Germans as possible.

Theatre Television

Invited Guests Saw First Public Show in New York

The first public showing of large-scale theatre television, utilizing apparatus developed recently in the R.C.A. Manufacturing Company's laboratories, was staged at the New Yorker Theatre, New York, before more than 1,000 invited guests.

On a white screen, 15 by 20 feet, the guests watched the Billy Rose-coordinated scene, "Sam." Ken Overlin championship fight at Madison Square Garden with almost as much clarity as if they were at the ringside.

A round-table discussion by sports executives, theatre managers and engineers also was flashed on the screen. The speakers discussed the possibility that such a system in the near future, if extended to link by wire many theatres instead of one, might make it possible for a million sports fans instead of a few thousand to witness a major athletic contest.
